Refinance Applications Continue Outperforming Purchases

The volume of refinancing applications, shored up by interest rates that remained at seven- and eight- month lows, rose for the fifth time in the last six weeks. However, during the week ended August 18, the gain was a marginal one, not enough to keep the overall level of applications from declining. The Mortgage Bankers Association said its Market Composite Index, a measure of that volume, was down 0.5 percent on a seasonally adjusted basis, and lost 2.0 percent before adjustment, when compared to the week ended August 11.

The Refinancing Index moved higher, but only by a scant 0.3 percent. The refinancing share of applications rose to 48.7 percent from 47.8 percent, the third straight week that share gained ground.

The Purchase Index declined by 2 percent on a seasonally adjusted basis and the unadjusted Index fell 3.0 percent compared to the previous week. The seasonally adjusted Purchase Index hit a seven-year high during the week ended June 2 (a holiday-adjusted week) and has declined in all but three of the 11 weeks since. The unadjusted index was 9.0 percent higher than during the same week in 2016.
